Only a tew months ago the Register spoke of Charleston as a greedy and selfish intriguer, who was ready to sacrifich the interests of the balance of the State in order to succeed in securing the Capital. It was then of the opinion that the place could not be developed by any further experiments as a Capital location. Now it draws a picture that is almost gorgeous as to what great things are in store for Charleston when the becomes are was the Capital of the labeled to the president and a rather egotistical maner sent in his card as "flenry Schrieffer, Duke of E-penburg, Germany." "Charleston has always set more value noon this acquisition than any other section of the State. Its possession once infused new life into her business interest; it brought her latent wealth and resources into notice; it united her more prominently with the State than anything else could have done, and there is perhaps no other part of the population of West Virginia, that would receive the known more graciously or not it to better of West Virginia that would receive the innor more graciously or put it to better account. She will be hospitable to the representatives of the different sections when they visit her city; she will dress up her streets for them, enlarge her hotel accoundations, and do the agreeable after the most approved fashion when invested with the bonor of being the seat of the State Government.

Senator Blaine is now here, it is understood, with a view to revent two of his friends in Maine from being outself in this way from two fat it these men were pioneers in the antislavery cause on Virginia soil. Scarcely one of the "old guard" who came to this city thirty years ago to engage in the iron business but at last turned out a free-soiler, whatever might have been his political affinities elsewhere. There were some of them who were once strong Democrats in Pennaylvania, but who revolted at the discovery of the fact that the Virginia Democracy mean't mere blind subserviency to the slave interest and the entire suppression of freedom of speech as against that interest. One of the instrumentalities of their revolt against Virginia Democracy was the visit. reminds us that one by one the pioneers and Reformers," in which the slavery these make no more personal payments question was incidentally alluded to. The influence of the pro-slavery Democracy was at that time so overshadowing that Mr. Greeley was in duced in the interest of the public peaca not to deliver that lecture, and accordingly, after his appearance on the rostrum, announced a change of subject. Mr. S. H. Woodward, who was one of these pioneer iron-workers from Erie, Pa, and a rigid Democrat, too, was so indignant at this overawing of free speech in a free country, that he rose up and left the hall, and demanded his admission fee at the door, receiving which, in the shape of a silver quarter, he inscribed thereon the letter "F," for "Freiheit," the German for "liberty," and this momento of the days of pro-slavery regime in this community he preserves to regime in this community he preserves to this day.

The late Charles W. Russell made acry singular speech on this subject in the old Atheneum building in this city in 1860. He had been a delegate to the National Democratic Convention that met at Charleston, South Carolina, that year, and his speech at the Atheneum was ontensibly to give an account of his steward ship as a delegate to that Convention. Among other things for which he took credit, was the fact that he, years before, had encouraged the coming to this city of these pioneer iron workers from the Free States, although, as he said, he knew at the time he was assisting to plant a germ the state of the statement of the various departments are being made for the various departments are being mather the reason therefore the statement that more persons have been employed here.

professional fitness. This is undoubtedly the correct view to take. Let us go to the polls to-day, not as Republicans or Democrats, but as fellow citizens bent simply upon securing a good officer to fill the important position of Municipal Judge for the next four years.

Hecoming Warmer and Warmer for Charleston.

The Register is becoming as rampant as a veritable Charleston paper itself in alvocacy of that point as the proper location for the Capital. One can not help wondering how that paper could have possibly said so many harsh things

State. The editor's prophetic soul is less more consideration was bestowed upon the individual who came next—an old colored chap, armed with a set of most to illuminate the whole future of Charleston. He must wonder to himself ham Dufour had been bitten by three how miraculous it was last winter that he oreast, legs and arms, and otherwise mustifiated, and therefore he wanted "a chance, Massa Hayes, for to do some light sweepin' work around de baildin."

Two Georgetown ladies were present who brought along a darkey aged 110, who claimed the privilege of shaking hands with Mr. Hayes, as he had done with every President since Washington. And so on through the chapter. It was a curious throng, differing however, only in excessive numbers from the crowd that daily seek to see the President.

Many protest.

Many protests are received here from day to day in opposition to the plan of consolidating agencies, many of which seem to be written by persons who do not understand the workings of either the old or new plan. No inconveniencies or hardships will be experienced under the reduction of the number of agencies—the only persons to be incommoded are Many protests are received here from ie only persons to be incom the agents who will be thus legislated out of $4,500 offices. Senator Blaine is now here, it is understood, with a view to gether.

One great evil of the old system is the issue of many checks upon some local national bank, for the collection of which the pensioner often has to pay from a quarier to a half dollar; under the new plan, by making all the checks on the principal cities, this collection fee will be sared to the soldlers. The pensioners when they understand the plan, will like it. Of course the agents and their friends, who thus lose their $4,500 salaries will think the consolidation plan a humbur. The government will save $100,000 a year The government will save $150,000 a year by the consolidation, which is an item not by the consolitation, which was a technical to be despised in these hard times. The Secretary of the Interior is anxious to have the new plan understood, and so many are interested in the change that it becomes a matter of widespread importance.

NOT THE REAL REASON.

the time he was assisting to plant a germ of hostility to the institution of slavery. This he alluded to in order to show that he was willing to acquiesce in a blow to Virginia's "peculiar institution," fealty to which was the very essence of Democracy, on account of his fidelity to the inference of Democracy, on account of his fidelity to the inference of Democracy, on account of his fidelity to the inference of Democracy, on account of his fidelity to the inference of Wheeling.

What a curious confession this was to make? It sounded very strange to us then as we listened to it, and we have never cased to regard it as a most remarkable ulterance. It was as much as to affirm the dogma laid down by Mr. Seward, that there was an irrepressible conflict between slavery and freedom; that this country could not endure half-free and half-less and half-green of the departments, on account of deficient and having not include the work in both the work in properties.

The number of Ohio Republicans, who ar dissatisfied is small, and if the Southern disastisfied is small, and if the Southerners show a proper appreciation of, and will in good faith reciprocate, the President's efforts to tranquilize the country, the party will stand right up to that policy. It is only their doubts as to what the South will do that causes any lukewarmness at all, and we believe these are the genuine sentiments of Republicans all over the North. So it is of prime importance to the South to act in good faith in this matter, which we are firm in the faith she will do.

GEORGETOWN EXCITED The citizens of that part of Washingto The citizens of that part of Washington known as Georgetown, are at fever heat over the steps being taken by certain parties residing in Western Pennsylvania and near the Virginia line, to make good their claim to a large estate, situated mostly in Georgetown, and comprising nearly 450 acres of land, now valued at nearly three millions of dollars. The original owner was named Blackmore, and his claim, or rather that of his twenty heirs, seems to have considerable foundation. The parties interested in this city have employed counsel, and the case promises to be a very interesting one.

GENERAL NEWS.

Seige of the White House by an Army of Officeseekers.

Washington, D. C., May 23.—Several days ago a letter was received by the President, purporting to be from J. R. Lewis, Chief Justice of Washington Territory, resigning that position, and concluding with the remark that on retiring to private life, he was in full accord with the reconciliation policy of the President. Not suspecting the genuiness of the letter, the President yesterday appointed Associate Justice Green, of the same court, to fill the vacancy supposed to be occasioned by the alleged resignation. This morning information was received from Judge Lewis and others by telegraph pronouncing the letter a forgery, and Senator Mitchell represented these facts to the President, who thereupon reversed his action of yesterday, thus continuing Judge Lewis in office. A similar fraud was practiced six or seven years ago while Judge Lewis was Chief Justice of Idaho. A letter of resignation having been received by the President, his successor was appointed and confirmed by the Senate before he had into the remedy at the time.

History et a Murder in East Feliciana.

New Orlears, May 23.—The Republican gives the following account of the assassination of James Laws, colored, of East Feliciana; Mr. Dula, of East Feliciana, has reached here and brought with him the coffin that was placed at his door on Saturday, and a bunch of Winchester rifle cartridges, which were placed with it. He also relates that the crowd of build dozers, after threatening him, went on with the information that they would return and put their threats into execution. They then went to the town of Jackson and rode up to the house of James Laws, colored, and found him seated in his gallery with his mother. They said, "Hello Laws, have you got back?" He rose and and answered them and was instantly shot dead. This was on Saturday evening.

In reference to the assassination of Laws, ex-Governor Packard states that just before his return to East Feliciana Laws wrote him saying that on account of his presiding at a Republican meeting held in East Feliciana during the late campsign and his consequent forced as merchant had been destroyed, and begging Packard's influence to get him a place in the Custom House. Packard further says that Laws told him that his life was in danger; as he had testified before the Senate Committee, giving before the Senate Committee, giving Bey must prepare to see his capital combarded. The Tunis government is
